Remarks: I asked [redacted], the editor who handles this country, to review the use of PIMSA in the DR since its inception. His very complete rundown is attached. Financial considerations aside, I recommend that we continue to explore purchase. I cannot stress too strongly the point he makes: If this material were not "restricted" and forced into the annex, we would have used even more. [redacted] presents a good case, but the question is: What is the relative priority of greater coverage of Mexico in terms of the allocation of FBIS resources. It should be noted that this is a one-country service (Mexican news only). RCJ

MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief, LA/WE Branch, DRD
SUBJECT : PRENSA INDEPENDENTE MEXICANA, S.A. (PIMSA)

1. Since the Daily Report began receiving PIMSA material the first week of December 1974 it has proved to be one of the most reliable Mexican sources in general, exceeded in quality only by INFORMEX. The agency is most thorough on such topics as foreign relations, internal politics, and economic-agricultural-petroleum items, all of which are given priority in the CIRL and have been specifically noted by the OCI Mexican specialist as items of the greatest interest.

2. A total of 92 PIMSA items have been published in the Daily Report Annex to date (see attachment). They break down as follows: Relations with communist countries, 18; relations with other countries, 21; governmental, political or union-related items, 19; agriculture-livestock-fishery, 12; economic or business matters, including banking, 8; terrorist activity or domestic unrest, 7; petroleum-related items, 5; the remaining two items deal with energy production, one involving a new uranium plant and the other concerning the government's plans to build 15 new power plants in 1975. Dozens of other topical items which warranted publication were discarded due to space limitations in the Annex.

3. It is our view that Mexican coverage could be greatly enhanced by making PIMSA an open source. Its excellent political coverage will be particularly useful as Mexico's PRI approaches the designation of President Echeverria's successor later ~~this year~~.

Editor, Latin America Daily Report
